Three Generations and Over 100 Years of Serving the Community

Fremlin E. Hollingsworth had a business philosophy, “Fair business and community involvement”. A philosophy that he passed down to through the generations.

The beginning of his successful career started in 1907 as a bookkeeper for Lock City Manufacturing Company. Two years later Fremlin became a shareholder and manager. He later sold these shares to purchase interest in the Corrigan Lumber Company, and in seven years time, became the sole owner of a company later known as Soo Mill & Lumber Company.

A successful businessman, husband and father, Fremlin was an active member of his community. His expertise was often sought after, and he lead many important initiatives, such as raising funds for the Victory Bonds campaign during the war, running successful campaigns for the hospitals, becoming President of the first Welfare Federation, known today as the United Way. He was also an active service club member, including serving with the Rotary Club for 55 years, and was a founding member of what we know today as the Rotary Community Days.

Fremlin retired from Soo Mill & Lumber Co. in 1952, and began a new career as the President of Great Lakes Power Company Ltd., where he served for the next 19 years, along with continuing his community service work.

Fremlin’s sons, Simpson, Lynn and Ian – the second generation of Hollingsworths – were raised following Fremlin’s business philosophy legacy. Together, each brother led a specific aspect of the family business: Simpson oversaw the retail operations; Lynn managed the property and building division, and Ian oversaw the mills, including Michigan Maple Block Company. Over the next 40 years, each brother served in the role as President, seeing the businesses grow in size, services, product lines and locations. What began as a lumber supply store grew to become a leader of building products and renovation supply stores, production and property development.

Throughout the business’ growth, the second generation of Hollingsworths continued to be actively involved in their community, serving in a variety of roles with numerous organizations, and generously supporting many charitable causes.

The beginning of the 1990s made way for the third generation of Hollingsworths to carry on the family tradition. Cousins John and Lynn successively lead the business, expanding their installation services, incorporating technology into the prefabrication plant, and consolidating retail operations into their modernized Great Northern Road location.

For over 100 years, three generations of Hollingsworths have served Sault Ste. Marie and the Algoma district in business, community involvement and philanthropy. Their legacy and commitment to fair business and community involvement continues to live on through their tireless efforts and generosity.

JOHN R. RHODES SCHOLARSHIP

The John R. Rhodes Scholarship was established in 1979 thanks to generous contributions from friends and family of the late John Rhodes. The scholarship is offered to a high school graduate who best embodies the integrity, leadership and commitment to community service demonstrated by John Rhodes throughout his life as a broadcaster, community member and politician.
